PRICE FIVE CENTS

She Kicked the Bandits Out

When five bandits entered the Covington (Ky.) bank where Miss Lorraine Zang was working, put her hands with the rest of the employees. But the six-year-old Miss Zang stepped on the burglar alarm—and her feet saved the day. The bandits fled empty-handed.

All Edmonton Will Observe Day of Thanksgiving Monday

Armenia Day Memorial Incl. Special Services At Churches Sunday

By proclamation of Canada Monday, Nov. 6, has been set aside as a day for the observance of the Armistice of Nov. 11, 1918, when the greatest war in history was brought to a close.

Sunday many of the churches of the city will be open to the public and the militia will attend in uniform.

Schools and the larger privately owned business houses and places of amusement will close to give the blessings of the past year.

"After reading of the terrible strife we are having," said Mayor Blaikie, "we are going to be thankful for it in Alberta and Edmonton."

The bandits who have disturbed the coast have dispersed; the blue and white swastikas city building reports and departmental summaries have been removed; the police officers down the stairs to the dock.

The Greatest of All.

Parliament has ordered that Thanksgiving Day in Canada shall be the Monday immediately preceding the anniversary of the signing of the armistice which ended the great war. That anniversary falls on Thursday next week. Monday accordingly becomes the national day of thanksgiving.

It is appropriate that the re-establishment of peace after that awful four years should be thus associated with the thought of Thanksgiving. For all blessings which can come to a people, peace with the greatest of all.

Canadian hearts and homes have only too good cause to know that throughout years of blessing and for the last two years of boundless crops, and expanding trade, and good times, during the war. But these things counted for little in themselves. They were valued chiefly because they enabled the country to back up the men at the front and carry on until victory should bring peace.

That remembrance can never fade while this nation exists. It is a permanent standard for the measurement of relative values; and by Canadians must be reminded on each Thanksgiving day that the chief good that can come to them is the privilege of living in peace.

Thanksgiving.

Canadian peoples offer sacrifices to propitiate and avenge their deities.

Christian people give thanks to a gracious Providence for good bestowed and for evils withheld.

Between those viewpoints lies a gulf as wide as the chasm between barbarism and civilization. There is no set of thanksgiving in the conduct of the heated. And there is no place for thankfulness in his creed.

To him life is only existence in the shadow of unseen and hostile powers. His world is the playground of deluded fiends.

The most he can hope is that he may by economies, sacrifices and observances avert the calamities they are prone to visit upon him. To give them thanks for his immunity would be a contradiction.

He buys them off at the price prescribed by his priests, and is entitled to expect that they will leave him alone. Beyond that he looks for nothing at their hands.

Thanksgiving is the essence of the faith of Christianity. The God it worships is a Father to His children, provides for them through the complex operations of nature's forces and laws and somehow brings good for them even out of seeming hardship and adversity; and is therefore to be thanked for His kindly care.

Thankfulness is the appropriate attitude of the heated. And there is no place for thankfulness to the only attitude a Christian man or woman can assume toward the God of all good.

The Canadian people have, through their Parliament, set apart one day in the year to be observed as a day of special thanksgiving to Him whom they recognize to be the source of all their blessings. No people on earth have more to be thankful for and less to lament in the conditions of their natural life.

Monday should be something more than Thanksgiving Day. It ought also to be a day of thanksgiving.

The E. D. & C. Co.

The Provincial Government has decided that it is better business to operate the E. D. & C. Co. itself than to rent it to the C. P. R. for $250,000 a year. That is to say, the Ministers are confident that they can show more than that amount of net earnings at the end of the year, after paying all operating costs and any other charges which the C. P. R. would be liable to assume.

At the rental offered would have paid interest on the cost of the road, it is stated, to be about $20,000,000, the venture is not at the worst one of throwing away a substance for a shadow.

The C. P. R. intended to have something left for itself after paying the rent, but the Government operation will be an additional and welcome contribution toward the overhead charges.

While a branch line railway which does not end at a seaport is not a very favorable enterprise on which to try out the experiment of public operation, there are circumstances which give a better chance than is common for the success of the Minister's plan.

The capital charges are a more or less constant quantity, while the area served by the E. D. & C. Co. is as yet but sparsely settled. As population increases and traffic develops the "operating ratio" should show sharp decline, and in a correspondingly larger balance to meet the interest.

Under any same management, public or private, the position of the road cannot but improve as the country settles up and business grows. If the C. P. R. offer was based on the present volume of traffic there is good ground for thinking that with proper administration the line can be made to earn a larger sum; for that volume is certain to expand.

The traffic arrangement made with the National system gives the E. D. & C. Co. the main line connections without which it could not serve its territory satisfactorily, nor have a fair chance to make the financial showing that is now possible.

So far as the people are concerned who depend upon the road, they are in "virtually the same position as though the line were a branch of the transcontinental system. It is stated that on both local and through traffic they will be continued the rates they have been paying, and

On Missing a Big Event

By EDGAR DE GUST

I cannot help forever on the go.
Some big events I know I'll have to miss.
I've fully made my mind up now to this.
I can't always be Johnny-on-the-spot.
Nor does it matter if I have or not.

The world goes on without consulting me.
And the plow that I have to till
To dinner, now and then, I'm glad to say.
But here at home contented I can be.
I can't always be Johnny-on-the-spot,
I'll read a book and early go to bed.

"You can't afford to miss it," some declare.
"I've had to miss a lot of things," I say.
And the world goes on without consulting me.
No man can hope in every th'ell to share.
I'll stay at home contented and to the last.
Add just one more attraction I have missed."

OUT OUR WAY

By Williams

Leathernecks of Haiti

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Many people criticize the Americans for retaining the French in Haiti. President Louis Horne, who has recently been attending the Encyclopedic Conference in Chicago, throws a cold water on this.

He says that the turbulent conditions prevalent in Haiti are the result of many little politicians' craving the power of the government and always setting up an opposition.

As quickly as the little politicians set up their revolutions, however, he says, the marines move in.

"Haiti is most calm and peaceful today," said President Horne.

The marines are kept in Haiti, he says, because the Americans have to admit that the Haitians are not fit to govern themselves.

The American marines, therefore, are kept in Haiti, to maintain the peace and to prevent violent overthrow of the government.

Then came the treaty with America, and the marines were withdrawn. The United States sent in the United States in 1915 and formally placed in effect in 1917. By this the United States secured the right to intervene in Haiti, and maintain that peace ever since.

"It is not time yet to withdraw the marines," said President Horne.

In the terrible trying times of American intervention in Haiti, the marines were the first to be sent in.

He says that the marines are not fit to govern themselves, and the government overthrown by violence.

Then came the treaty with America, and the marines were withdrawn.

OLD EDIFICE TO BE REBUILT

John Black Memorial Kirk
East Kildonan To Have
Historic Alter

Canadian Press
WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 4.—When John Black Memorial church, in East Kildonan, Manitoba, is to be demolished to rebuild, it will have as a cornerstone the tomb of the Rev. John Black, at which the first Presbyterian minister in Manitoba gave his services when the Indians gave him a gun and sent him down in prayer.

The church, a simple wooden structure, was actually founded in 1851, when John Black came to the colony, but the present building was erected until 1855.

The church started May 7, 1852.

BARITONE SINGER IS ARRIVED AT THE EMPEROR THEATRE

In addition to a splendid holiday attraction, "The Ace of Cads," by Michael Arlen, in which Adolphe Menjou is the star, the Emperor theatre announces the appearance of the famous Canadian popular baritone soloist from Durango, Mexico, who served in the Great War and was in the Canadian division, to join an overseas concert party which will include the Canadian soldiers in France. Menjou has been at the Empress all next week, with performances at 8:30 and 10:30, and numbers on Thursday, when the feature picture will be "The Crimson Nemesis," starring Milton Sills.

giving this city something new and novel each week.

Mr. Belmont has retained intact the cast of "The Crimson Nemesis," a play which, like "The Gorilla," has a most unusual and grippingly mysterious angle. All the thrills are there, and the action, which at first revolves around a mysterious stranger in a uniform, played by George Taylor, gives one of Edmonton's favorite pictures. The comedy scenes, with their cards which tell him of the desire of his secret enemy, as the end is approached, are particularly good in the play. A treat in store for the coming week is the new musical comedy, "Men of Steel," starring Milton Sills.

Those who possibly can do so are advised to get to the theatre and be seated in the early times to witness full and complete shows and entertainers.

Owing to the big cost of the production, offered by the Capitol Theatre, Mr. H. J. Wilson would appreciate the patronage of his many patrons by coming to the theatre at early evening performances, at the same time giving the management a chance to give the utmost in service.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
When JUDITH MARTIN, a young college teacher, cleaned ERIC, her teacher's rebel son, and others of the more unconventional elements of the school, she makes an enemy of JAX, her husband.

DR. PETER DORN, astronomer professor, is a rival of Eric.

MYRA ALDRICH in love with Eric, and jealous of Judith, has turned her attentions to vamping Dr. Dorn.

Eric is suspected of dealing with the notorious SILL, a notorious bootlegger, in selling poison apples. The police have been dead set against Judith, but she has died.

She is trying to blackmail the dean's wife, having discovered a love affair of hers, of which Judith was ignorant, with her best friend, Mrs. Brown, believing the two to be in love.

Judith spends the Christmas holidays in Myra's home, the former home. The servants go off on Christmas Eve and leave her alone. She goes to bed, but finds her back door unlocked and slams herself in her bedroom.

She hears shuffling footprints on the porch under her windows.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII
The footprints stopped for several moments. Then came the violent ringing of the doorbell. Judith's heart raced. She sprang from her bed and pulled the window halfway up.

"You'll have to come in through the back door," she called. "I'll come down to let you in."

The man stared. "Gum—"

"Well," said Judith, "I used to use it to frighten them away. And I might have had to shoot somebody."

The man grunted. "How you-all know?"

"I know,"

"I'm not afraid."

"I'm not afraid,"

"I'm not afraid,"</p

CAR OWNERS ARE ADVISED TO "STRETCH THEIR RUBBER"

Possibility of Advance in Tire Prices Suggested By Leading Tire Manufacturers—Many Ways To Save Are Explained

An increase of $20 to $75 per set will easily cause separation of the rubber from the fabric carcass of the tire unless it is maintained. The tire manufacturers do this by stretching the tire to the size that will tell you which you must get from any tire dealer.

Learn the correct air pressure to draw the most from your tires. Draw with more or less side motion instead of turning the tire, will grind the rubber off the side of the tire. Remember, a clean car over today's average consumes any of the various forms of waste, including rubber.

When the correct pressure is used, the loss of 10 or 15 times that of the car's weight is obtained.

When the correct pressure is used, the car's weight is reduced.

Shut valves and passes of gas are the cause of tire wear. A valve that has been closed for a long time will cause the rubber to wear away.
